Despite access threat

HCSA ready for 1994-95 season

by Andrew Milne

Brian Watts says, trail closures or no trail closures, the local snowmobile club will be ready for the 1994-1995 season.

Watts is president of the Haliburton County Snowmobile Association (HCSA).

Local landowners with forested lands are threatening to close their trails to public access, including snowmobilers and cross-country skiers, if the Ontario government doesn't come up with a program by November 1, to reduce their tax allotments.

Prior to 1993 a program called the Managed Forest Tax Rebate (MFRT) rebated taxes to forest owners who managed their forest lands according to certain criteria. The rebate was suspended in 1993 as part of a cost cutting program.

The forest owners say they can't manage their land

Efforts underway to improve standings

Haliburton's grade nine students performed slightly below the provincial average on Ontario-wide reading and writing tests last year.

It is the writing test about which superintendent of education Dale Robinson is most concerned. A report presented by Robinson at the September meeting of the board of education showed that 12 percent of the Haliburton students performed below grade level, compared to 7 percent across the province.

Dale Robinson

"We do intend to do something about this," said Robinson at the meeting. And Robinson has a number of plans in place. "We're doing a total review of our language curriculum," this year," he said, "and we're paying particular attention to student writing skills. We're planning to look around the province at other boards' writing programs — particularly those that did well on the provincial test — and see what they're doing, maybe get some ideas and teaching strategies from them and try and implement them here to try and beef up our program. I have a committee looking at the language program, particularly writing, to see about making changes."

The test and the preparation for the test are integrated into regular classes, and as such are administered by the students' own teachers. Ann Varty teaches English at Haliburton Highlands Secondary School and administered the test at the school. On the subject of where the Haliburton students fell short, Varty says the students seemed to suffer on "the more sophisticated style points", such as whether they had a clear voice in their writing, and whether they seemed to have a sense of who they were writing for.

"It's not like spelling and grammar," says Varty.

The test is administered by the Ontario Ministry of Education and Training (MOET). The ministry has been doing provincial reviews for years now — tests done on large random samplings of the schools to assess the performance of the system in a number of subject areas. The reading and writing test grew out of these reviews in 1992 when the minister of the department announced that the planned reading and writing review would be administered to all grade nine classes across the province.

A representative for the ministry was unable to provide any information on how many other regions performed in the ballpark of the Haliburton students, as the Minister of Education and Training is not expected to officially announce the results of the testing until later this month.

Why did the chicken cross the road?

....or more specifically, walk into Estella Burch's yard near Mountain Lake last Thursday. Mrs. Burch knows of no coop nearby from which the bird may have strayed and the Barred Rock isn't talking. The fact that Thanksgiving was just a few days away may have accounted for the chicken's perambulations. For the moment, however, the foot-loose hen is enjoying a safe haven while Burch searches for its owner.

Little chance of replacing eagle

by Jerry Grozelle

Chances of replacing the golden eagle that was stolen from Archie Stouffer Elementary School during a break-in a couple of weeks ago are slim to none.

Golden eagles are on the endangered species list and as such, even those which are found dead of natural causes can no longer be mounted and kept in the private sector.

The bird that was stolen from ASES was found dead on the farm of Paul Warburton in January of 1977. It was given to the school and turned over to a taxidermist to be preserved and put on permanent display at the school.

"We will certainly miss the bird," said ASES Principal Peter Forgrave. "It was one of those things that helped make the school a special place."

Forgrave remains optimistic that the items that were stolen from the school (especially the eagle, since it can't be replaced) may be returned, if the person or persons responsible are caught or if a twinge of conscience results in their return.

"We hope to eventually get our things back," Forgrave said.

All of the taxidermy mounts at the school have been registered with the Ministry of Environment and some with the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, but whether or not that will aid in the recovery remains to be seen.

The eagle is of no use to the thieves. Under provisions of the Game and Fish Act, it is illegal to sell any part of a wild animal or bird.

September was a pleasant month with considerable sunshine giving us higher average temperatures than last September. There were some rainy days, but much less rain than last September. There was some frost on several mornings with September 30th being the first to put the frost on the pumpkin. The weather between the 16th and 26th was excellent. That was not Indian Summer... hopefully we can look forward to that yet.

The first week of October gave us the killing frosts, especially on the nights of October 2 and 3.

Condom cascade leads to charges

A 19-year-old Haliburton man has been charged with theft as a result of an incident which took place at Pinestone Inn on the evening of September 30. Staff at the resort discovered that the condom machine that was located in the men's room in the bar area, had been torn off the wall and stolen.

During a routine traffic stop, a few hours later, the accused person was requested to produce the papers for the vehicle he was operating and when he opened the glove box, a large quantity of condoms fell out, prompting the officers to investigate further.

Charged with theft under $1,000 and possession of stolen property under $1,000, is Michael Hatfield of Haliburton.

have to do up here is — as a group of neighbours and friends and people that are all here for the same thing — I think we have to get together and formulate some kind of plan for when the new government takes power at Queen's Park."

Watts does, however, say the HCSA supports the landowners in their fight. Says Watts, "I firmly believe that the tactic that was used to try and force the governments hand — there's nothing wrong with that idea. I just think that it's the wrong government, the wrong time, and the wrong policy."

He also seems hopeful that there may yet be a solution anyway."

"I think we have to sit down with [the forest owners]... and say okay, fine, these are things that we've got to work out, and try to come to some agreement."

The HCSA was to meet with Peter Schleifenbaum of the HFOA about the closures October 10.

As the warm Indian Summer sun glints off the windshield of his snowmobile, President of the HCSA Brian Watts is confident about the season ahead.

largely fuelled by tourists, including snowmobilers.

Watts says, however, that closure or no closure, the HCSA will be open for business this season as usual.

"If this does happen," says Watts, "we have contingency plans already for the trails we feel that we're going to lose."

Watts says he feels he has a reasonably good grasp of which trails will be closed. He has asked the Haliburton Forest Owners' Association (HFOA), which is organizing the lock-out, for a list of landowners who will close their lands, but it has not yet been received. This might not necessarily be a problem.

"We know basically what trails they are going to be," says Watts, "and we've got ways around them... it might make longer rides from point A to point B, but we'll be all right."

"The only thing that bothers me," he continues, "is that if people get on the bandwagon and decide they're going to close this and they're going to close that

"My own personal opinion is that I don't think it's going to happen... I don't think there are any means left at the disposal of the NDP government. Their mandate is finished. They have to call an election. They don't have any money. I just don't think they're interested in trying to solve this problem. I think what we

Record turnout delights artists

This year's Studio Tour has owners raving about the wonderful weekend it turned out to be. With great weather, and a more positive economic outlook, how could it not be a record weekend?

"It was a heck of a lot better than the numbers we got last year," said Mary Kinsman of the Windflower Forest Studio.

"I would definitely have to say at least 2,000 people came through on Saturday alone. Being stuck in the corner all day I was amazed to see all of the people who stopped to visit the studio. Sunday is always slower, but we were steady right up until 6:00 o'clock. A lot of people who were heading home stopped in to see our materials," said Kinsman.

Artists from east to west did well selling their products, but studios located at the end of a tour route found the attendance was not as high.

"We had about 800-1000 visiting our place during the entire weekend, which is about the usual number of people we get every year. Our studio is a special situation because of where it is located. A lot of people 'give up', by the time they reach us, and go home, so we get the real dedicated ones," said Steve Longworth of Wicker Works. The studio is located on Highway 507, south of Gooderham.

"But this year we did quite well. It was a lot better than other years. We had more people buying things and more people signed up to take our courses this year. I'd say the sales and course registration was up about 30 per cent. People are just spending more," he said.

"We did really well this year and we are very happy with the outcome. This was our best year so far. It was very positive. Last year it was down, but there may have been other situations to consider such as weather. We were blessed with good weather this year" said Kinsman.

Volunteers on call 24 hours a day

Crisis counsellors provide valuable service

by Andrew Milne

They're a small group of dedicated volunteers.

The professionals — doctors, nurses, and police — call them when they need someone to assist the people in the grips of the trauma and stress that generally accompanies crisis situations such as automobile accidents. They're a local initiative. They're very effective.

And they're looking for a few more like themselves to help them out.

The SIRCH Crisis Assistance Program (CAP) currently consists of five teams of six volunteers (no one in the program is paid) who agree to be on call for a set period of the week — from 5pm to 8am (through the night) during the week, and for a full 48 hour period on weekends.

"The emergency personnel beep the team leader, and then he or she finds out where the situation is," says one volunteer. "And then he or she beeps the team leaders, and they go from there."

The volunteers asked not to be identified. The program is very team-oriented, and they like to keep it that way.

"It's a volunteer program that gives emotional and practical support to individuals in a time of crisis — which could be a car accident, fire in the home, a sudden death, domestic violence, suicide, whatever," she continues. "The volunteers are like good neighbours. They go and they sit and they listen. They would get coffee, make sure the children are okay."

Often this means just showing up at the hospital waiting room to talk with people who would otherwise be waiting alone. They do the little things the professionals don't have time for.

The volunteers are all trained — they have around 50 hours of training initially, and then they have an ongoing training program. Training covers confidentiality, ethics and legal responsibilities, listening skills, problem-solving and crisis intervention. The volunteers The Times talked to spoke highly of their training. "It gives you confidence," explained one.

Assistance may take any number of forms. One volunteer talked about "a vehicle accident maybe where the individuals didn't even know where Haliburton was. They were from out of town, passing through at a distance from Haliburton itself... and then here they are. They're in a hospital in a place they've never heard of. So they need to contact family. They need emotional support, and they need practical support sometimes... Sometimes in a crisis it is the family members who are all in crisis too."

The teams talk about incidents among themselves, afterwards, to deal with the stress that is sometimes incurred. They see people affected by grief, by fear, by pain, and it affects them too. "You wouldn't be human if it didn't," said one.

They have a policy that, in events involving a fatality, the team members talk things out with a professional counsellor.

The program is a new idea, and pretty much unique to Haliburton County, say the volunteers. But other regions are looking at starting something similar.

Demand, they say, is growing. And for this reason, they need volunteers.

To volunteer for the SIRCH Crisis Assistance Program, call Betty or Gena at 457-1742. There is an application and a screening process involved.

Author creates a magic world for children

by Kelly Pettinger

Fifteen years ago Norma J. Burk created a whole new world. She found a new way to use her imagination through writing novels for youngsters.

But it wasn't until a few years ago that she decided she would try her luck and send some of her stories to publishers in Canada. Unfortunately, the publishing companies she chose only accepted stories applying to certain age groups. Not to be discouraged, Norma sent her manuscript to several publishing companies in the United States. One wrote back praising her work and saying it would be happy to publish her work.

Now, two years later, her book, Bluebells and Acorns, sits on shelves all over the United States. "It's a really good feeling knowing that children might be enjoying my book and learning from the characters I've created," said Burk.

Her characters are based on animals with human traits. Burk said she preferred building life-like characters out of animals rather than using people people. "When I discover a new character, I never think of it as a human. With most of my characters, being human wouldn't make sense. I find it a lot easier to tell a story using animals. I think children find it fascinating to see that maybe squirrels have to go to bed at a certain time," she said.

Most of Burk's animal characters are based on people she knew. "One character, a mother squirrel, comes from a lady I knew. She was always scurrying around looking for things to do. She was always so busy, and she always reminded me of a squirrel," she said.

Burk said one of the main reasons for writing children's novels is that she noticed children do not read as much as they used to. "I noticed with my grandson that he would do nothing but play video games all of the time. He would sit there in front of the television set, with his eyes glued to it, and play non-stop. I would play with him, and at four years of age, he was beating me with no problem. He could play so fast, it was unbelievable," said Burk.

In a press release, Burk stresses that she hopes "animals of a gentler nature with some human characteristics can insert a message or two into their lives, and perhaps help the youngsters relate the situation to their world, to make it better."

Most of Burk's writing has a moral. But she said she isn't always sure children want to read a book that gives a lecture. "Children want to use their imaginations. They want to 'make believe' and have fun, so I wasn't sure if I should add too much of a moral to the story."

"With most of my stories though, the characters always learn something in the end, which will hopefully sink into the reader's minds. The one story I have written is about a frog. He is the smallest frog out of all his friends. He is in a choir and sings the loudest. But he sings so loud that it ruins the music and the little frog won't listen to the conductor or anyone else. The rest of the animals decide to get back at him, and in the end the little frog realizes that they like him even though he is small, and he doesn't have to be better than anyone else," she said.

Bluebells and Acorns is only available in the United States at the moment, but Burk hopes it will be sold in Canada soon.

Minden resident Norma Burk has recently had a series of children's stories published under the title of Bluebells and Acorns.

Hired gun with a rep

by Andrew Milne

Where better for a notorious gunslinger to retire than quiet little Minden, in the heart of the Haliburton Highlands?

It's quiet (but not too quiet — gunslingers hate that). And federal agents rarely pass this way (except when the local indoor marijuana plantations go up in smoke).

And who is likely to look twice at a man sitting innocently behind his easel, painting the sunny days away? He doesn't look dangerous. More like a retired teacher. Or dental hygienist. Or something.

But Cy Heal is nothing so innocent. Authorities the world over (the commercial art world, anyway) know that name.

Cy Heal, they'll say, "we remember...."

Heal was number one with an airbrush.

An airbrush — for the uninitiated — is a clever little tool which sprays a very fine mist of paint or dye in a very concentrated beam. Until only a very few years ago, when computers took over the graphic arts business, it was the tool of choice for anyone who wanted to make something look like something it wasn't, since the density of the spray could be controlled well enough to retouch photography. It is a very precise, very demanding piece of equipment, and Heal is one of the original masters of the trade.

"We used to do terrible things," he says, pointing to a piece of his work — an automobile advertisement. "We'd take a car like that, cut it in half and stretch it a few feet longer. People seemed to like them better when they looked like that."

"Then they'd see the real vacation in the Haliburton area, and Palmer hired him to do the cover. The little Harlequin logo still used today — the one with the harlequin in diamond motif tights — is Heal's work as well.

He has always loved cottage country, he says. He used to visit in the forties, when the roads made the trip most of a day long (some will report that traffic now makes the trip most of a day long). He used to take groups of friends up from the city for the weekend.

"I was the one with the car," he explains.

Heal was born in Wales, and emigrated with his parents to Canada when he was in his teens. He got started in the art business as a lettering artist for a sign painter in Toronto. It was during the depression, and getting a job — any job — was a serious challenge. Heal had admired the headlines in the newspaper, and started, painstakingly, to make up lettering samples by copying them. "I'd made these samples," he said, "and then I saw an ad in the paper... I went to answer it and the guy I saw said 'I'll think it over.' He was giving me the brush off, but I wasn't taking any of that. I wanted the job. So I went home, but I kept

HAVE AIR BRUSH WILL TRAVEL...

He mimes 'The thinker' at this point. "I did some of those."

He was senior art director for a firm called Heggie Advertising on Eglinton, for which he worked for two years. After this he moved over to the Ronald Reynolds company, where he worked as the creative director until his retirement.

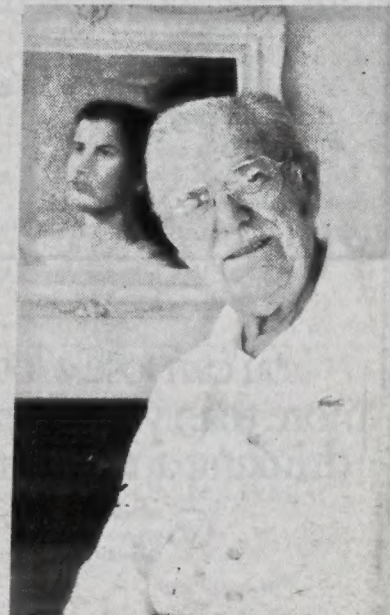

He's retired now. Yes, sort of. He hasn't lost his talent or taste for promotion, however. Besides this article you could have read about him in The Times in 1981, and in The Echo later that decade. Old publicists....

And he's still an artist, in every way. The walls of his home are lined with paintings — some in acrylic, some in oil, and some in a little of everything.

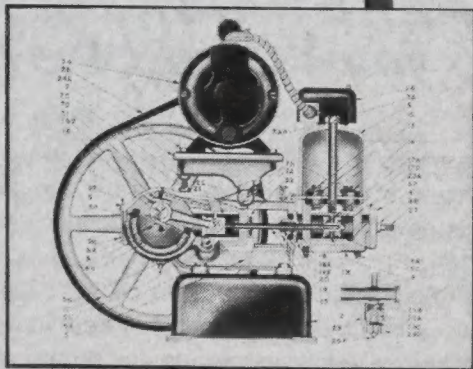

Which is appropriate, one supposes, for a man who has done a little of everything, at one time or another.

thing and wonder why it was so small."

Heal has probably had a subtle influence on the lives of most of the population of this country. He has drawn tires, chocolates, air pumps, seat covers ("And now I don't like my wife to wear plaid," he says) and a variety of other merchandise for retailers and manufacturers of every description. If you thumbed through a Canadian Tire catalogue before technology made colour photography in such publications practical, you've probably seen his work. And if you happened to read a Harlequin Romance back when they first appeared, the cover could well have been Heal's. He met the original publisher of the books — Jack Palmer — at Deer Lodge while on on phoning him until he gave in."

Heal worked at that job — at a photo engravers' in Toronto — for 11 years. He left this job during a particularly ugly strike during the thirties and moved on — doing contract work for advertising agencies until landing a permanent job with one.

He did odd jobs — whatever worked — for years. He has done commercial sculpture. "You know those plates you see on the wall," he asks, "with the men sitting there like this?"

Legislation pits privacy against the public's right to know

One local municipal government is calling proposals in a bill brought forward by the government of Ontario "offensive in the extreme".

Among other things, the bill requires that municipal politicians make certain information about their financial affairs available to the public. The local government says this is an invasion of privacy.

A representative for the Ministry of Municipal Affairs (MMA), however, says the bill requires nothing of municipal politicians which is not already required of provincial ones.

The provincial bill is Bill 163. Among other things, it proposes that persons seeking office in local municipal governments and school boards be required to make statements as to their assets and business connections — including mortgages, loans, partnerships — and to make statements to the same effect for their spouses and children.

According to the provincial MMA, it would not be required that the amount of money involved be disclosed. Persons running for municipal office — this includes the reeves, the deputy-reeves, the municipal councillors, and the school board trustees — would only have to say who they were dealing with. They also would not be required to state on the form which members of their immediate family hold which assets. The information would be lumped together, and it would be this information that would be available to the public.

The bill also modifies parts of the Municipal Act and Municipal Planning Act, legislation controlling how the municipalities do business.

Brian Donaldson is a Municipal Advisor for the MMA. Donaldson says that it is because of these changes that the conflict of interest legislation was introduced. "I think the rationale was," he says, "that if municipalities are going to have more planning authority, then some of these other things should be tightened up."

The municipal government which has criticized the bill is that of Snowdon. A resolution in council brought March 9, 1994, by the township, says Section 8 of the bill contravenes the protection of privacy enjoyed by other members of society. It then describes the proposal as "offensive in the extreme," and proposes that, instead of making the information freely available to the public, it be made available to a committee which would be responsible for complaints of conflict of interest.

Ernie Hills is clerk-treasurer for Snowdon township. Hills has been telling persons running in the upcoming municipal election that, should the legislation be passed as is expected in the upcoming year, they will be required to submit the information to him. Hills says he is doing this because, should anyone refuse to file, they will be forced to vacate their office, in turn forcing him to call another election. Hills, who says Snowdon elections cost between $3500 and $4000 out of the yearly budget of around $190,000, feels it is in his best interest that the people running for office be warned.

Explaining the rationale behind the council's resolution, Hills says "Under the freedom of information and privacy act, everyone is provided a certain degree of privacy in their affairs. We, as administrators at the municipal level have to take that into consideration when dealing with certain matters. We are not for example allowed to disclose the current status of anyone's property taxes... So everyone within the public domain has certain rights, under that legislation, to privacy and to protection of that privacy. This clearly creates a subclass of individuals — namely the elected representatives — who are required to make disclosure and that information is public domain."

Hills also expressed concern that, in the sometimes very personal contests involved in municipal politics, people with an axe to grind over legislation might use the information in ways that are less than fair.

Paul Jones, Local Government Policy Manager with the Ontario Ministry of Municipal Affairs however, is less than sympathetic to the council's views.

Says Jones, "the municipalities have made a lot of this invasion of privacy thing. I think it should be noted that the privacy and freedom of information commissioner has been quoted as saying that in his view 'it is tantamount to stating the obvious to say that by choosing to enter the public arena, elected officials forego a degree of privacy they might otherwise expect to enjoy. There are several reasons for this, not the least of which is to facilitate and foster public accountability."

Jones is also critical of Snowdon's proposal regarding submitting the information to a committee. Says Jones, "That completely defeats the purpose of open local government. The idea is that the public have access to information so that they can judge for themselves whether or not a person has a conflict of interest in a matter that is before the council."

Giving the information to the committee, Jones says, simply wouldn't be the same thing.

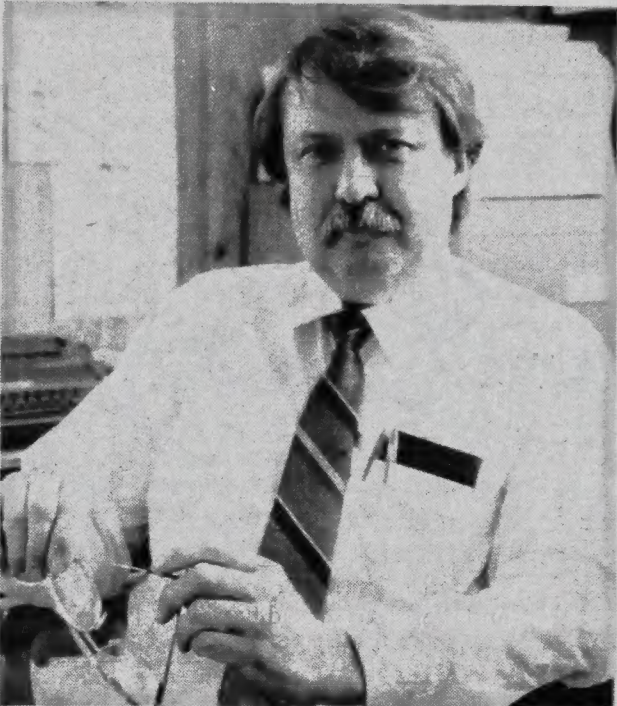

There has been legislation at the provincial level with the same effect on provincial politicians since 1988. A bill brought in under the Liberal Peterson government that year, established that MPPs must file financial information with a Commissioner of Conflict of Interest at Queen's Park.

The information required of MPPs is more detailed in nature, and includes dollar amounts. Anyone walking in off the street, according to Lynn Harris, executive assistant to the commissioner, can ask to see the records, but on the records made so generally available the dollar amounts are blotted out.

"All it will tell you," says Harris, "is that yes they have Canada Savings Bonds, they have a bank account at this bank, they have stock in Air Canada for example."

Harris says the MPPs rarely make any kind of trouble about giving the information. Says Harris, "They've been very good, very cooperative."

Elsa May is a school board trustee for Snowdon township. May says the legislation won't stop her from seeking office again in the next election, but she wonders aloud whether the legislation will affect people running for office. "Everyone's in business around here," says May.

Snowdon Clerk-Treasurer Ernie Hills... his municipal council thinks the new disclosure legislation is offensive.

Last call

The time has come for candidates to step forward and declare their interest in seeking municipal office. The community should be appreciative of those who offer their services for elected positions. The workload is rarely light, the hours long and the remuneration....well, there are few, if any, who can describe the financial rewards as lucrative. The very nature of the work, making decisions, means that elected officials are always leaving a string of disappointed, and sometimes angry constituents in their wake.

On top of those considerations, the provincial government has introduced new legislation which will require municipal politicians to make their financial holdings and business dealings a matter of public record. While we applaud the intent of the new rules, we are concerned about the impact it will have on potential candidates for municipal office. Some feel that the disclosure provisions go too far and that many worthy candidates will hesitate to put their names forward because of the unwanted intrusion into their lives and those of their immediate family.

We can only hope that the effort to keep everything "above board" will not have the negative effect of discouraging candidates from stepping forward and limiting the community's choice of who will lead it for the next three years.

Fight for Minden Hospital

Editor:

I wish to express my gratitude to the doctor and staff of the Minden Hospital for "being there" for me in August. The truth is that, had they not been, I would not be writing to you now.

I am a seasonal resident (since 1973) who experienced a heart attack in August. With the quick assistance of my wife and a neighbour, I was rushed to Minden Hospital where I received immediate, professional and proper care. While such care may also be available in places like Lindsay or Haliburton, it is doubtful I would have made it that far.

As a concerned ratepayer, I would strongly support the retention or rebuilding of the Minden Hospital. It is difficult to imagine what kind of expedient thinking considers the Hospital not an important facility in such a heavily travelled and seasonally populated area. Geography alone should be reason enough.

Life is beautiful, and particularly precious to me these days. I join with those of our community who are willing to dig in and make sure our Hospital is there for others too.

Thank you Burnt River

Editor:

I am overwhelmed by the warmth and generosity of my hometown, Burnt River.

While their good wishes were certainly more than sufficient, the people of our village, with the leadership of Ada Handley and the support of the Burnt River and District Recreation Association, hosted a wonderful "welcome home" reception for me last weekend (September 17).

I was presented with a plaque from Somerville Township and certificates from both the Provincial and Federal governments. Dee Jay Flowers provided a lovely bouquet of flowers and The Chelsea Bun provided a beautiful big cake.

I'd like to thank Ada Handley for organizing the reception. I'd also like to thank all of the people who came out to the reception, as well as the people who sent cards and letters.

I have just received word that I will be able to go to the Pan American Games on at least a partly subsidized basis. The generous donations of my Burnt River friends will be put towards the cost of this trip. I can't thank them enough.

A great job

Editor:

I wish to reply in regards to the dying trees in Ingoldsby. I have been driving the school bus through Ingoldsby for the last two years. This road along the lake can be very dangerous at times during the winter. Although it is usually sanded at school bus time, there is certainly no excessive use of sand or salt.

As a matter of fact, I have never actually noticed any salt. If there is any mixed in with the sand, it must certainly be very minimal. I, and some of the parents, have seen my bus slide on several occasions. To reduce sanding is not an option.

In conclusion, I would like to say that I believe our Roads Department and our Council are doing an excellent job under the present economical circumstances.

Short letters are most likely to be chosen for publication, but the use of any material is at the discretion of the editor. The editor reserves the right to edit letters to meet space requirements, for clarity or to avoid obscenity, libel or invasion of privacy.

All letters must bear the handwritten signature of the writer and include the address and phone number for verification purposes.

An election ploy?

Editor:

I am writing in response to R.A. Minto's letter in your newspaper of October 3rd.

I also wish to commend Mary Hincks on her "prompt, very thorough investigation" on the effects of salt killing the trees in Ingoldsby.

Whether I agree or disagree with her/him, is not the issue. R.A. Minto mentions having contacted Deputy Reeve Lewis Stevens, "without success". The writer then goes on to say he/she also contacted County Warden Jim McMahon, who agreed "to take a look".

He/she then goes on to thank Jean Anthon for her "prompt and genuine concern", and finishes by again thanking Mrs. Hincks and the "next Reeve of Anson, Hindon and Minden, Jean Anthon".

My question to the writer is, why would you contact a local councillor, who does not sit on county council, concerning an issue that should be dealt with at the county level? Lewis Stevens and Jim McMahon are the county representatives for the Roads Committee. If you weren't happy with their response, it seems to me, the next logical step would be to contact someone who does have a voice at the county level, our current reeve, Bern Berry. By bypassing him, you have turned this into an election ploy.

The writer also mentions 15-35 per cent increases in taxes annually, but forgets to mention that increase is at the county level (where Ms. Anthon doesn't have a vote or voice) not the municipal level. Before attacking budgets, please clarify which budget you are speaking of. Also, I would suggest you do some homework. Check out the figures at the local level and the members of our local council who were present when the budgets were set.

Thanks for your support

Editor:

I wanted personally to thank the Minden community who so quickly and ably got together to sponsor a Terry Fox Run in Minden this year.

It was already early August when I started to gather around some people to help with organizing the event. I was very fortunate to have these people join me to run the event: Debbie Hilkers, who co-chaired the run with me; Gord Monk. Pat Campbell, Jean Anthon, Kevin Lewis of IDA Drugstore, Linda Brandon and Northland Sales. They all worked tirelessly to get the run organized (with a group like that, how could we have failed!)

Many other people joined in to make out first Terry Fox Run so successful. We had excellent support from Archie Stouffer School, its principal Peter Forgrave and gym teacher Eva Griffiths and all the students who ran, walked or biked.

The checkpoint people at the five kilometre turnaround worked all by themselves down Deep Bay Road and, although not part of the general activities at the start and finish, were a very necessary group. Unseen, but not forgotten are Pat Brezina, Grace Lougheed, Linda and Shirley Brandon and her granddaughters Amy and Emily.

Let's all get behind this group again next year for an even more successful event. Thank you all so much for your support Minden community. You should be proud.

Artifice on the silver screen

Do you find you're having a little trouble at the movies these days — trying to distinguish what's real from what isn't, I mean?

Don't get down on yourself about it. You're not nuts — the movie business is.

Consider: A brand new John Candy movie came out a few weeks back. It's called Wagons East and stars Canada's favourite funnyman as the besotted, buckskinned leader of a wagon train of settlers in the mid-1800's. The hook is they're heading East to get away from the Wild West.

Which is a pretty funny premise, and should make for an entertaining flick, especially with roly-poly Candy lolling around in the saddle.

There's just one problem: John Candy's dead.

What's more, he died more than half a year ago, on the set.

More than half of Wagons East was shot after the star of Wagons East was no longer available for camera work.

How did they do that? Simple. Hollywood faked it. They used several John Candy lookalikes with their hats pulled low or their backs turned. They hired an actor who could imitate his voice to fill in the necessary dialogue.

Hey presto. Candy rides again.

Such reincarnation isn't even new. Earlier this year another star, Brandon Lee was killed in a gun accident while filming a movie called Crow. The producers didn't even have 30 per cent of the film in the can when Lee died. They needed his face and his body in at least seven crucial sequences in order to make the movie believable. Could they pull it off?

Sure — with the help of a little computer magic. Computer experts isolated Lee's face on one screen, then "painted" it digitally onto the neck of the body of another actor who then performed the movements Brandon Lee would have, had he been alive.

End product: Lee in a scene in which he never appeared.

There are lots of other examples. Did you see Forrest Gump? You remember the double amputee, Gary Sinise?

In real life Gary Sinise can do the Hully Gully better than you and I. He's got two perfectly useable legs. They were "amputated" by a computer, for the film only.

In the film True Lies, the opening scene shows a beautiful mansion beside an unspoiled lake which sits at the foot of a series of snow-capped mountains.

And it's a fake. A collage.

The mansion sits in Newport, Rhode Island; the mountains are part of the Sierra Nevada in California and the lake is nowhere at all — computer animators created it out of electrons.

The weird thing is, when you look at the scene — you can't tell any of that.

What's it mean, the fact that the Truth/Reality divide is blurring even more? I'm not sure, but it's pretty scary.

We are being systematically taught not to believe our eyes. And we're learning. A survey a few years back showed that 12 per cent of Americans don't believe astronauts ever landed on the moon. They believed it was an elaborate PR exercise orchestrated by NASA choreographers somewhere in wilderness Arizona.

What happens when we no longer trust anything we see? Well we'll become more passive I guess .. like graduate Couch Potatoes.

That too may be happening. Last month a crowd of tourists at the Mont-Saint-Michel Abbey in France stood by like a herd of Holsteins and watched a woman drown trying to save her child.

The mother was walking with her six-year-old along the beach when her child fell into a water-filled hole. As the frantic mother tried to save it at least a dozen tourists stood and watched without trying to assist her or to call for help.

They probably thought it was a mini-drama for visitors. If they thought about it at all.

Finally, rescuers from the town managed to save the girl. They couldn't reach her mother.

One of the tourists — an American lugging a VCR — was heard to murmur, "I got the whole thing on tape."

New office opens

With the snip of a ribbon, Mrs. Anne Schrader of Lochlin officially opens the new premises of Minden Hearing Service. Located at the Westside Jug City plaza, the facility will be the central office, providing hearing tests, hearing aid service and repairs. Satellite offices for the service are located in Haliburton, Cobocok, Bracebridge, Orillia and Marmora. Reeve Bern Berry, left and owner Gord Kidd, right, assisted at the opening while Jeff Smith the Canadian sales representative for Siemens Company and Merle Reid, Registered Nurse and Certified Hearing Instrument Dispenser, held the ribbon. The ceremonies attracted a large number of friends and clients. Speaking at the opening, Certified Hearing Instrument Specialist Gord Kidd told the gathering he and his wife Laura were appreciative of the support they have received from the community as they enter their fifth year of operation. The honour of cutting the ribbon was given to Mrs. Schrader, as she was one of the service's first customers.

Barry Shaw will lead the OMHA atoms this season

by Jerry Grozelle

Barry Shaw will be coaching the Minden atom OMHA hockey team again this year. The 1994-95 season will be his ninth year behind the bench.

He coached two years (atom and bantam) right after he got out of junior hockey.

Shaw admits that he really wasn't prepared to coach in those early years. Being fresh from the junior hockey loop, he was very aggressive and not very tolerant of kids who weren't prepared for every game.

A few years away from coaching and watching how other coaches worked gave him a better understanding, a different attitude and a renewed confidence. When his son Joshua, who is now 11 years old, started in tyke, Shaw got back into coaching. When Josh's coach moved away from Minden, Barry was asked to take over the team. Over the past six seasons, Shaw has moved up with his son through novice and last year into atom.

"I felt I had a lot to contribute to hockey and I figured I could give that to the kids," he said.

Shaw says he really enjoys coaching. "The best part is seeing the kids improve every year," he said. "That is the most gratifying part. It makes it all worthwhile. Hopefully we're doing something right."

During his own hockey playing days, Shaw said he had a lot of good coaches and a few bad ones. Some were well prepared and their practices were well run, and some weren't.

He added that you should never say anything bad about a coach who puts in his time, especially when he doesn't have a child in hockey.

Of all the coaches Shaw had, he says the junior coaches were among the best. He singled one out, Craig Stamp, who taught him more about playing defense and molding his style than anyone.

"It was basically like starting over with him," Shaw said.

He added that the style of hockey has changed since he played junior. The emphasis now is more on speed, puck-handling and developing a winning attitude.

Every young hockey player has a dream of being an NHL star. Shaw says that each individual has a certain amount of potential and it is up to the coach to develop that potential as quickly as possible.

Shaw played his minor hockey in Minden and junior in Haliburton. He also played for teams that travelled around, playing in tournaments.

Last year, when he turned 35, he played his first year in an oldtimers' league. He still plays on two local men's teams as well.

"I'm a fairly competitive person and I sometimes have to check my emotions quite a bit, especially when I'm coaching," he said.

Shaw said maintaining a good work ethic with his players is important.

"In my practices, I try to keep everybody busy and in games, we might lose, but we won't be outworked and that's still satisfying, even if we do lose, he said."

Along with the good aspects of coaching, there are a few bad ones as well. Shaw said that the hardest thing he has to do as a coach is make the cuts — telling the hopeful players who don't make the team.

But, he has a healthy attitude about making those cuts. He equates them to life in general. It is a character builder.

"You may apply for a job and not get it," he said. "I've had my share of disappointments playing hockey. I probably wasn't one of the most talented players, but I worked hard. That's what I like to see in a player."

"All you can ask of any child is for them to do their best," he added. "And, usually, when they do give their best, good things happen."

The season has started for the atom team. The boys played two games on the weekend and their next home game is tonight (Tuesday), starting at 7 p.m.

Barry Shaw will coach the Minden Monarchs atom OMHA hockey team again this year.

Seniors still undefeated

The senior Redmen soccer team remains undefeated after battling to a 2-2 draw against the LCVI Spartans in Lindsay last Wednesday.

Because of their late arrival and a conflict with LCVI's girls' field hockey team over the field, the Redmen had only about five minutes to warm up before the game.

"For the first five minutes they were all over us," Redmen coach Walter Tose said.

In spite of LCVI's dominance, the Spartans failed to score during that first five minutes.

LCVI did draw first blood, but before the end of the first half, the Redmen rebounded with two goals to take over the lead at 2-1.

Lindsay got the equalizer with about 10 minutes left in the game and it ended in a 2-2 deadlock.

Both of the Haliburton goals were on breakaways. Ryan Goodall scored the first marker and Jay Corby netted the second.

Sloppy play in the Haliburton backfield resulted in both of the Spartan goals.

Coach Tose centered out Goodall, Jonathan Bishop, Mike Morrison and Nathan Gibbons for their excellent work. Tose also refused to lay the blame for the Spartan markers on goal keeper Roberto Guerra. The coach said that Guerra made some key saves and he continues to improve with every game.

The Redmen currently hold down first place in the Kawartha West League with seven points from three wins and a tie. Weldon and Fenelon are tied for second with four points each.

A win over the Falcons this Wednesday would clinch first place for the Redmen. The top two teams in the standings play off for the Kawartha West title.

Juniors fall 4-1 to Spartans

The junior Redmen soccer team went to Lindsay to take on the league-leading LCVI Spartans last Wednesday. The undefeated Spartans kept their record intact, defeating their Haliburton rivals by a 4-1 score.

"Anyone not at such a game might say it was a blow-out," Redmen coach Dan LaPierre said. "However, those present saw something different."

The junior Redmen stormed the field, taking control of the tempo, the ball and LCVI for the better part of 40 minutes.

Leading 1-0 at the half on a goal by Nathan Stephenson, the Redmen outthrustled and outplayed the Spartans.

In the last 10 minutes of the game, the quick pace set by the Redmen caught up to them and they ran out of gas.

The Spartans dropped in three goals in less than 10 minutes to deflate the Redmen and capture the game.

Crowe scores five in Westside's 13-5 win over Kountry Double D

by Jerry Grozelle

Three Minden Men's Hockey Association games were played last Monday night at the Minden Arena.

Westside Jug City 13, Kountry Double D 5

The Westside Jug City squad has served notice it will be a team to contend with this year, downing Kountry Double D 13-5.

Craig Crowe paced the Westside attack with five goals and two assists. Scott Hamilton added a hat trick and five assists. Andy Campbell scored two and assisted on a third for the winners. Monty Miscio notched one goal and helped set up three. Paul Walker and Dave Pettes had one goal and two assists. Dave Ross had three helpers and Harold Cowan had one assist.

Derek Barnett, Charlie Teljeur, Ben Manuge, Rob Adams and John Teljeur (on a penalty shot) notched one reply each for the KDD team. Manuge and John Teljeur had two assists apiece with single helpers going to Steve Stewart, Adams, Barnett and John Hewson.

Home Hardware 8, Sid Stamp Fuels 7

The 9 p.m. game, between Home Hardware and Sid Stamp Fuels was a hard fought battle from start to finish. Home Hardware came out on top by an 8-7 score.

The Stamp team was down 6-4 at the end of the first period and three goals late in the game were not quite enough to catch up. Wyatt Nesbitt was the leading scorer for Home Hardware with four goals and two assists. Kent Taylor scored a hat trick and added four assists to the winning tally. Dave Hartwick netted the other goal and assisted on one. Lawrence Lougheed picked up three assists with Fraser Rogers adding a pair. Jim Crawford and John Ballantyne helped set up one Home marker each.

Attempted block: Eric Greaves (72) of the Haliburton Redmen tries to block the Weldon punt during last Tuesday's senior game in Haliburton. The Redmen shut the opposition down once again to earn a 26-0 victory.

Still no points scored against senior Redmen

Three wins, no losses and no points scored against them. That's the record of the Haliburton Redmen in senior high school football play this season.

The Redmen made it three in a row with a 26-0 victory over the I.E. Weldon Wildcats last Tuesday at Haliburton.

Tim Stouffer and Kevin Morissette got the Redmen off to a good start, each scoring a touchdown in the first quarter.

The second quarter saw Peter Brohman catch an 18-yard pass from quarterback Kevin Morissette to score the third Haliburton touch down. Stouffer made good on one of three convert attempts and at the half the Redmen were up by a 19-0 margin.

Aaron Tomlinson made it 25-0 when he took an eight-yard Morissette pass across the Weldon line. Stouffer converted the TD and that ended the game's scoring with the Redmen in front 26-0.

The Redmen will take on the Falcons in Fenelon Falls this Friday. The next home game is slated for Tuesday, October 18.

Junior Redmen down Wildcats with last-minute touchdown

They had to play all their best players for the whole game but the result was a 14-7 win for the Haliburton Redmen over the I.E. Weldon Wildcats in junior football action.

Coach Bruce Griffith admitted that without Mike Bradley, the Redmen would probably have lost the game. Bradley ran for 319 yards. His longest run was 90 yards in the first quarter for the first touch down.

By the end of the first half, the Wildcats had battled back and tied the score at 7-7.

"In the second quarter they fooled us on a couple of reverses and tied it up," Griffith said.

The third quarter saw some major gains by the Redmen called back because of penalties.

The score remained deadlocked until the last minute of the game. With a third and six situation, the Redmen opted to punt in the hopes of either catching the Wildcats in their own end for the point or putting the ball through the end zone to earn the point. The punt was a poor one and a Weldon defender got the ball. He decided to punt it back out but the ball hit an upright of the goalpost. A Haliburton player jumped on the ball.

After consultation with the referees, the Redmen were awarded the ball on the Lindsay 10 yard line. The next play saw Bradley run it in for the touch down.

"Darren Mills, our fullback, made a beautiful block that made way for Bradley to score the touch down," Griffith said.

Weldon made a couple of plays after Haliburton's kick-off but an interception ended any hopes the Wildcats had of getting back on even terms.

"Our defense was strong," Griffith said. "We had a couple of key interceptions by Justin Rowden and Mike Simmons."

Griffith said that the passing game wasn't working. "The quarterback was sharp, we just haven't found anybody who can catch yet," Griffith joked. "We have to work on that."

Griffith said that it is nice to have a team that can provide some opposition (the Wildcats). Haliburton will play Weldon again in about three weeks. The next game is Friday, October 14 when the Redmen will take on the Fenelon Falls Falcons.

Some people would like you to believe that our community would be a better place without the hospital and emergency services now available.....

DON'T

The "consolidation" of acute care hospital services in the Highlands is not what our community wants. It is a policy imposed by officials of the Ministry of Health; a policy which will result in the closing of one of our hospitals; a policy which is creating ugly divisions between our citizens; a policy which, if carried through, will leave in its wake mistrust and division that will take years to heal. It is time to tell the Ministry of Health that consolidation is not what the citizens of this community want. It is time to tell the Ministry of Health, if it really believes in the right of citizens to create their own model of health care, to withdraw the consolidation edict and allow the Acting Health Services Board to find a solution that is fair and equitable to all concerned.

Thank you Lee!

Home Buying 101

I'll bet you're wondering how an R2000 home can save you BIG BUCKS over the long term and why common sense should prevail over emotion when purchasing a commitment known as a home. Well, watch this...

You have $20,000 available for a down payment on a home. You can realistically afford, without being foolish about it, to pay $1100.00 per month which includes principal, interest, taxes, and energy, all of which you MUST budget for or you will either get thrown out of your new home or freeze.

Now...what price home should you be shopping for? Well, if you consider an interest rate of 10%, a 5 year term, and an amortization period of 25 years fair, then the answer is determined by the cold calculus of mortgage mathematics:

$20,000	$700	$100	$300	$1100	$75-$80,000

Let's fool around a bit with the numbers. Keeping the same down payment of $20,000, and the same combined monthly payment of $1100 BUT BECAUSE YOU ARE BUYING AN ENERGY EFFICIENT HOME you can take $150 off the monthly energy costs and add it to the monthly payment of principal and interest... Now check this out:

Your Down Payment	Principal & Interest	Monthly Taxes	Monthly Energy	Monthly Combined Payments (P.I.T.E.)	Shop in this Price Range
$20,000	$850	$100	$150	$1100	$90-$95,000

All you've done is increase the proportion of the $1100 you budgeted for P.I.T.E. to service your mortgage debt. Presto - you can now afford to pay $15,000 more for your new home!

Indeed, this is leading somewhere. The R2000 home at the top of the page has 912 sq. ft., two bedrooms, main floor laundry, drilled well, all day sun, full insulated basement, and a nifty heat recovery ventilator. The price is $95,000. Let's run through the exercise again using more reasonable numbers for interest rates (8.5%) and actual figures for taxes and energy:

Your Down Payment	Principal & Interest	Monthly Taxes	Monthly Energy	Monthly Combined Payments (P.I.T.E.)
$20,000	$603.92	$61.64	$125	$790.56

This home will always give you your best opportunity to save energy and is therefore your BEST BUY in these frugal times we live in. If you bank your savings in energy and apply them toward the unpaid principal when your mortgage term is up, you could be owning this home outright a lot sooner than you think.

Bike helmets just a year away

The province is gearing up for bicycle safety as the one-year countdown to mandatory helmets begins.

"Ontario's 2 million cyclists should use their heads when it comes to safe cycling habits — that includes wearing a helmet," said Transportation Minister Gilles Pouliot. "It could save your life or, at the very least, prevent serious head injuries."

More than 3,300 cyclists were injured and 27 killed on Ontario roads in 1992. Statistics also show that 75 per cent of cycling fatalities are the result of head injuries — and that helmets can reduce the risk of head injury by 85 per cent.

In July 1993, the province passed a private member's bill to make wearing a bicycle helmet mandatory as of October 1, 1995.

Since then, the Ministry of Transportation has formed the Bicycle Safety Team — a task force to promote safe cycling and helmet use. The team includes partners from the cycling community, health and safety groups, police departments and other ministries.

During 1993, the ministry also forged ahead with a full range of activities including safe-cycling educational and marketing materials.

The province has also committed $3.5 million annually to improve trails, bike parking facilities and cycling skills training and to make it more convenient for cyclists to take advantage of local transit services.

With one year to go before helmets are mandatory, the ministry intends to continue to form partnerships with other governments, the private sector and special interest groups to raise public awareness about proper safety equipment and safe cycling practices.

In the meantime, police officers will continue to remind cyclists about the upcoming helmet law during their normal enforcement activities.

"Our bicycle safety efforts go hand in hand with our overall commitment to make Ontario's roads the safest in North America," Pouliot added.

Persephone Township looms

--submitted--

Walt and all the other people of Persephone Township are coming back to visit Haliburton. The Haliburton Highlands Concert Series has enthusiastically responded to audience demands that Walt return to present his third instalment of the most popular one-person plays in Canadian theatre history — Wingfield's Folly.

Rod Beattie stars again as Walt Wingfield (and everybody else) in this comedy that had local audiences in stitches when he presented Wingfield Farm and Wingfield's Progress during two previous concert seasons. Two years ago Walt Wingfield left the comfort of his Bay Street brokerage office to seek a better, simpler life down on the farm. Two profit-free seasons later, Walt finally pinpoints the source of his problem and embarks on a course that brings him to his most profound crisis. Once again the residents of Larkspur in Persephone Township grab a good seat and take bets on what Walt will lose first - his heart or his mind.

Rod Beattie started out on the classical stages of Stratford Festival. He became known as one of Canada's most respected character actors including performances in television, radio and film. Shakespeare himself might have envied one theatre critic's description of "Beattie's ability for riveting characterizations in this perfectly constructed play."

Everyone who has ever experienced life in rural Ontario will revel in the attempt by Persephone Township's residents to educate Walt in the realities of country living. Farm life has never been more authentic and hilarious.

"With gestures and a grab bag of different voices any impressionist would kill for, Rod Beattie is able to conjure up imaginary characters with a few deft strokes," wrote The Victoria Times. CKLY Radio maintained "This is an experience no theatregoer should miss. Beattie's performance can best be described as sheer comedic genius."

In this third season behind the plow, Walt mirrors the real-life experiences of writer Dan Needles who spent half of his childhood in the city and half on the family farm in Rosemont, Ontario.

After completing university, Needles went to work as an editor of the local newspaper in Shelburne, Ontario. The letters he wrote under the pen name Walt Wingfield won the Ontario Weekly Newspapers Association's Best Column Award in 1976. Letter From Wingfield Farm, written in 1985 was his first play and he followed with an equally successful Wingfield's Progress in 1987.

After this performance, Walt may not visit Haliburton again for many years, so committed and would-be Wingfield fans have this rare opportunity to see an award winning production.

The Haliburton Highlands 94/95 Concert Series features Wingfield's Folly on Sunday, October 16. The two other productions in the series are Ion Harea violinist, on Sunday November 13, and The Algonquin Trio featuring piano, cello and violin on Sunday March 5, 1995.

All productions are held at the Haliburton Legion Hall. Doors open at 7:00 p.m. and performances start at 7:30.

Series tickets are $40.00 for adults, $15.00 for students and are available at Rails' End Gallery and Nancy's Flowers in Haliburton and IDA Drug Store in Minden. Single performance tickets are available at the door for $17.00 adult, $10.00 students. Call 286-1218 or 286-3756 for more information.

W.I. hosts tea party

Senior League

by Winnifred Barnum

The only activity on the weekend was Sunday night chapel service conducted by Reverend Burgess. He spoke on the ascension and it was very enlightening. Thank you John.

Monday afternoon Dottie Muirhead conducted a quiz on "I remember when ..." in the Primrose Lounge.

Tuesday, Pastor Murray had the morning chapel service which was a memorial service in remembrance of Kathleen Wren who passed away September 23, 1994. Many thanks Pastor Murray. There were crafts with Dottie Muirhead in the afternoon.

Tuesday evening Pearl Cowan had two tables of euchre for the residents who wished to play. Thank you Pearl.

Wednesday, Dottie Muirhead read the two local papers for those who were unable to read. We thank you Dottie. We spent the afternoon watching a movie in the Primrose Lounge.

Thursday, being Tea Party Day, the Minden Women's Institute hosted the tea party as well as the birthday party for the month of September. The birthday ladies were Annie Collison and Cora Upton. The tea and cake were delicious and the piano music by Jean Cox was enjoyed very much. The ladies and gentleman who hosted this party were Beulah Hewitt, Jean Cox, Bea Berry, Mabel Deacon, and Reverend John Burgess. Our thanks to everyone who made it possible.

There was bingo in the main dining room Thursday evening.

Friday Happy Hour was very well handled and entertainment was by the Grandfathers Four, Bill Payne, Eldon Deacon, George Smith and Don Burtch. Those volunteers who looked after the needs of the residents and friends were Don and Ellen Holden, Dottie Muirhead, Bonnie Fullan and Pearl Cowan. Our sincere thanks to everyone.

Royal Canadian Legion, Branch 636 is on the march

Yes, again this year Branch 636 has participated in a number of parades with our colours, starting with the County Fair, the Kinmount Fair, Warriors Day and our own Cemetery Decoration Day parade and service. It is unfortunate that we missed the District Drumhead parade in Campbellford, however we did receive late notice. It is noticed that we are getting fewer members out these days. Some of us oldsters find parading a little more taxing than in days gone by.

We do have a number of parades and services coming up such as Branch 488, Brechin's annual parade, memorial service and reception there on October 23 at 1:00 p.m., Branch 129 Haliburton and our own Remembrance parades and services in November. Possibly some of you younger members could turn out for these parades and participate with your veteran comrades. It is a wonderful way of saying thanks for our freedom.

The wheels are turning to initiate our annual Poppy Campaign. Comrades Lois and Syd Adamson are busy organizing this and are seeking volunteers for various jobs such as carrying Poppy boxes at various times and locations. If you are able to help, please drop into the branch and put your name on the posted schedule. Also on October 12 at 10:00 a.m. if you can help, there is a meeting at the branch to organize distribution, advertising, etc.

Our Ways and Means Committee has been busy. If you enjoyed Pub Night on September 24 you will want to obtain your tickets at the bar, early, for the following events:

Honours and Awards Banquet at 7:00 p.m. on October 15; Italian Night on October 29; and on November 12 Branch 636 will be hosting a Veterans Appreciation Dinner in the evening. We will be serving a complimentary dinner to all veterans and we will be seeking to identify them so they can be personally invited. If anyone knows of a local W.W. II veteran who does not receive an invitation, kindly notify Comrade Ken Walsh at 286-3820.

It was a pleasure both on September 20 and again on October 1 to host comrades from the branches in Fenlon Falls and Madoc respectively who were on bus tours admiring our fair county. We enjoyed their fellowship and do hope they will return.

We will hopefully be seeing some of these Comrades at the Zone F4 Convention in Coboconk on October 16 at 1:30 p.m. Members of Branch 636 are invited to attend this convention and participate in its proceedings. It is at Zone Conventions where many of our local grass roots decisions are formulated. The business of these conventions does have a direct effect on the branches in our Zone. We should, as members, try to attend and represent our branch.

We are sorry to report that three of our members, Comrades Walter and Vera Stevens as well as Cub Conebeare, have been under the weather lately. We are offering our best wishes and sincerely hope you will all be better shortly and able to rejoin us.

STANHOPE-CARNARVON POLICE SUPPORT ASSOCIATION

COME AND HEAR WHAT YOUR LOCAL POLICE SUPPORT ASSOCIATION HAS ACCOMPLISHED IN THE PAST YEAR AND WHAT WE PLAN FOR THE FUTURE.

A voice from the past

Science-fiction is often a way for us to assume

Reflections

by David Suzuki

meagre. For example, estimates of a perspective from which to view ourselves differently. The other day, I came up with a plot for a sci-fi story that goes like this:

Scientists succeed in building a time capsule which they send back through tens of thousands of years. A Stone Age "caveman", who is nevertheless a modern Homo sapien, is picked up and brought back to the present. In this fantasy, intelligent computers enable us to decipher his language and communicate with him.

The caveman turns out to be remarkably tough and survives the shock of time travel. He is astounded and entranced by our world of cars, phones, television and computers. After a while, he begins to pull these devices apart. When asked what he's doing, he answers: "You have lots more where these things come from, I can take the pieces home and become a powerful man. We don't have metal, glass, wire, or nuts and bolts, and they can be very useful. What we can't use, I'll just leave here with you. Now put me in that time capsule with all these treasures and send me home, please."

The scientists protest in disbelief: "Those technologies can do all kinds of useful things if they're not taken apart," but the "primitive" visitor is unfazed and self-confident. He replies: "We have our own experts and shamans, elders, medicine and they will be able to duplicate those things." Of course, when the caveman is returned to the Stone Age, his specialists can't reassemble the pieces because they don't know all the parts or how they were put together in the first place.

I'm sure this story idea would be rejected for publication as an absurd plot because no one would be so short-sighted or arrogant. And yet that is exactly what we, sophisticated modern people, are doing right now. The attitude of the visitor in this science-fiction parable is congruent with the viewpoint that underlies the actions of modern industrialized "civilization" over the past half century.

Far more than our most advanced technologies, the natural world is incredibly complex and exquisitely constructed to enable millions of species of organisms to survive and flourish. That mix cleanses and replenishes the air, water, soil and variety of life. Scientific knowledge of the spectrum of species that inhabit the planet and of the conditions that sustain them remains exceedingly the current number of species on the Earth vary between 10 and 100 million. To date, about 1.4 million species have been assigned a name. Now, when a species is identified, that merely means a dead specimen has been traced down into its proper category and named but it should not be inferred that anything is known about how many there are, its habitat or reproductive needs. Yet even though we know such a small proportion of the living components of this planet and remain ignorant about their basic biology and interactions, we are systematically dismantling vast and complex ecosystems and forests, prairies, wetlands, coral reefs, ocean floors, rivers and lakes and with alarming speed. If we don't even know what we are losing, how will we ever be able to reconstruct them?

When I was born in 1936, over 90 per cent of the world's forests remained intact. Today, a mere third remains untouched. When I was a boy, air was invisible, water clean and food free of toxic chemicals. Our technology was simpler, consumption was far less and there were just over two billion of us. In my lifetime, the global human population has increased by more than 150 per cent while each of us, on average, consumes more than four times as much as our grandparents.

We seem blinded from the consequences of what we are doing by a perverted notion of progress called "economic growth", which impels us to seek an impossible goal of endlessly growing consumption and profit. The incidental casualties of this mass delusion, workers, communities, ecosystems, children, future generations, were once the very reason for and basis of the economic system in the first place.

Today even young people, like their elders, often preface their memories of childhood with, "I remember when ..." or "There used to be ..." Once life-rich creeks, weedy vacant lots, woods and swamps have disappeared or changed. My children listen to their grandparents' reminiscences of childhood with disbelief that such a world actually existed so recently. My children find it difficult to grasp the loss of their grandparents' world as "the price of progress" or "economic necessity." The caveman in my story might be considered primitive, but he came from another time and was ignorant. What's our excuse?

OHIP limits outside country

As of July 1, 1994, if you are injured or become ill while travelling outside Canada, OHIP will pay only as much as that service would cost in Ontario.

Emergency inpatient hospital services eligible for OHIP coverage will be paid up to maximum of $100.00 (Canadian) per day or the amount billed — which ever is less.

Emergency outpatient services, with the exception of dialysis, will be paid to a maximum of $50.00 (Canadian) for all out-patient services provided on any one day. Out-of-country dialysis treatment will be paid at the present interprovincial rate of $210.00 (Canadian). The interprovincial rate is established between the provinces for services provided to people who are insured in one province but who are receiving services in another province. OHIP will cover services only in hospitals or other health care facilities that are licensed by local governments. OHIP will continue to cover necessary care for travellers within Canada. If you require further information regarding OHIP coverage, call 1-743-2140 (collect).

Applications for Ontario Health coverage and change of address/information forms are available at your nearest Information Centre in Haliburton or Minden.

IN MEMORIAM

PHILLIPS-Blanche & Goldie.
In loving memory of Mom & Dad who passed away October 16, 1993.

To Mom & Dad:
If we had all the world to give,
We'd give it all and more
To hear your voices, see your smiles,
And meet them at the door.
But all we can do, dear Mom and Dad,
Is go and tend your graves,
And leave behind our tokens of love,
To the best folks God ever made.
We'd like to think when life is done,
Wherever heaven may be,
You'll both be standing at the door
Welcoming all of us.
Sadly missed and lovingly remembered by sons David, Donnie, Dougie & Glenn; daughters Rosie & Dolly and grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

JOHNSTON - Myles Elwood.
In loving memory of a dear son and brother who passed away October 11, 1968.

So tenderly we treasure the past
And memories of our darling will always last.
When we cease to think of you,
Will be when God has called us too.

So early in your young manhood we lost you
We wish our whole life through,
With all our hearts for yesterday with you.
Lovingly remembered by Mom, brothers and sisters.

IN MEMORIAM

McAFEE - in loving memory of William G. A loving husband, father and grandfather who passed away October 12, 1990.

An ever aching heart.
